H. A. DICKINS
MV Secretary,
Bismarck-Solomons Union Mission

MV Leaders' Convention at J.M.C.

THE arrival of Pastor L. A. Skinner, of the General Conference MV Department, in the Bismarck-Solomons Union Mission in February, began a series of activities which will have a profound influence on the lives of our young people.

By ship, plane, foot, and bicycle they converged on the Jones Missionary College from Manus, Mussau, Emira, New Hanover, New Britain, and Bougainville, for the Missionary Volunteer Leaders' Convention. The union and local mission presidents, mission MV secretaries, society officers, and interested members enjoyed four days of intense activity directed at uplifting the standards of Missionary Volunteering in the Bismarck section of the union.

In the main, the Leadercraft programme was followed with extra material peculiar to island requirements. In the final commitment service on the Sunday morning, Pastor Skinner presented eighty Leadercraft certificates to those who had completed the course and pledged their lives to putting into operation all that the MV Society stands for.

A number of features from the Spotlight-on-the-Bible programme were promoted, the chief being the interesting quiz sessions conducted by Brother R. Dixon between the eight teams selected. The recitation of whole chapters of the Holy Scriptures and the memorizing of statements by Mrs. White on Bible study proved very helpful. A pledge to read part of the Bible every day was made by practically all the 350 people present on the Sabbath.

Around the campus, on board ship, and everywhere else could be heard young people singing, humming, or whistling the theme song of the convention set to the tune of "When the Juniors Go Marching Along."

"Every day, every hour, we will draw upon His power
As we search through our Bibles for Him.
To God's Book we'll be true; we will read it through and through,
And we'll study some person to win.
We must know God's truth while we're in our youth,
Keep the lamp of faith from growing dim.
And where'er we go we can always show
That our Bible will help us to win."

Assisting in the programme were the national and European staff of the college, Pastor E. A. Boehm, Pastor W. R. Ferguson, Pastor H. Watts, Pastor Mave, as well as Brother and Sister J. R. Masters and Brother and Sister M. McFarlane.

We trust that as the inspiration of the convention is carried to the farthest villages of the Bismarck there will be a keener interest generated in the activities of the MV Societies and of the JMV and Pathfinder clubs.

Congress in Western Solomons

The first Youth Congress to be held in the Bismarck-Solomons Union Mission has come and gone, and what a host of memories it has left in the mind! More than 800 young people from all parts of the Western Solomon Islands regularly attended each meeting in the large native-style camp-meeting house; while on Sabbath over 1,200 packed the "eravo" (large meeting house), with 350 children in another building. It was most inspiring to see such a sea of happy young faces.

Pastor L. A. Skinner was afforded a typical Solomon Islands welcome as he stepped from the ship at the Kukundu wharf, and right through the congress the feeling of expectancy and the spirit of enthusiasm prevailed.

The opening programme commenced with a parade of flags and the torch ceremony. Pastor Kata Rangoso, with feeble steps, came to the rostrum holding the torch. He handed it to a young worker with the admonition to hold it high for truth's sake. Pastor Skinner's call for greater devotion to Bible study and preparedness will not soon be forgotten.

"God's Word Our Rule of Life" was the motto for the congress, and formed the keynote of most of the meetings.

Those who performed the inspections each day will remember the rows and rows of beds on the floors. Beds filled the ten classrooms and all the dormitories of the central school, all the eight wards of the Amyes Memorial Hospital, and every room in the headquarters office; and all the houses around the various compounds were full to overflowing. Some even slept on the ground under the buildings. At flag-raising time the delegates lined up behind their leaders, forming a hollow square almost filling the playground.

The devotional periods, the Bible studies, the discussion and workshop sessions were varied and instructional, the young people taking part acquitting themselves admirably.

Joel Panda's handling of the ten quiz teams showed how well these young people know the Holy Scriptures; while the scores of questions that filled the question box showed they were concerned with the trends in present-day living in the islands.

We shall not soon forget the Friday evening consecration service when for nearly three hours the young people came forward to give their testimonies, many relinquishing their old habits to follow the Lord more fully. The Sabbath service by Pastor Skinner brought many to a similar decision, and sixty came to the front requesting baptism.

When the call was made on Sabbath afternoon for young people to come forward to recite various chapters from God's Word, the large rostrum was at times full to overflowing. Many also recited statements Mrs. White has made about the worth of our Bibles. We had prepared a thousand pledge cards for daily Bible reading, but they were insufficient for the number who promised they would read some portion of the Scriptures daily.

Boiled rice was the staple diet of the congress delegates, and to see the rows and rows of large bowls of cooked rice showed that behind the scenes the large group of volunteer cooks were busy caring for the 600 people who required and paid for their meals.

The congress ended on Saturday night as Pastor Skinner with the flaming torch held high called for the youth to pledge themselves to more diligent Bible study and to sharing their faith with others.

With the lights out, the torch burning brightly, and the motto in large letters glowing under the black-light lamps, the young people rose spontaneously and with bowed heads entered wholeheartedly into Pastor Skinner's prayer of dedication and benediction. May they ever remain true to their promise, and may the torch of truth shine ever brighter through the villages and islands of the Solomons!

Ordination

During the congress, Elisha Gorapava of the Western Solomons, a son-in-law of Pastor Rore, was ordained to the gospel ministry. The camp-meeting pavilion was full mostly of young people as the fourteen ordained ministers present filed onto the rostrum.

In his address, Pastor Skinner drew our attention to the need of God's work for trained, dedicated leadership, calling on ministers present to renew their ordination vows and the congregation to cooperate with them for the finishing of the gospel proclamation in this part of the world.

Pastor Itulu, the assistant president of the Western Solomons Mission, offered the dedicatory prayer and Pastor Rangoso gave the charge. The new minister was welcomed into the joys and responsibilities of the ministry by Pastor J. P. Holmes, the president of the Western Solomons.

Elisha and his family were home in the Solomons on furlough. He is a graduate of Betikama school and also of Jones Missionary College, where for a number of years he was the head native teacher. Since 1959 he has been the assistant departmental secretary of the union, spending a large amount of his time visiting the schools and villages of this field. His service is highly valued and his well-ordered sermons are a pleasure to listen to. In 1958 he attended the Quadrennial Session in Australia and then the camp-meetings around that country and New Zealand. We pray that a double portion of God's Spirit will rest upon Pastor Elisha as he enters into a fuller ministry for the Lord in this union.

Pastor Skinner at Betikama

Pastor Skinner's schedule in the union allowed him one night at the Betikama Missionary School in the Solomon Islands. After the Youth Congress he flew down to Honiara and arrived at Betikama about five o'clock in the evening. Here Brother Silva and his staff had prepared a Pathfinder display, and what an exhibition it was!

When the whistle blew the twelve unit captains, with their guidons, took up their places around the playground, and at a word of command the 180 Pathfinders, most of them in uniform, lined up behind their leaders. Two colour parties, one from a girls' unit and one from the boys', executed their flag-raising drill with military precision, uncasing the Union Jack and their own Betikama Pathfinder flag. Then followed a display of marching and drill which indicated much practice had been done before this night's effort.

Two boys riding a bicycle across the playground hit a log and sprawled in the mud. Pathfinders with bandages came from all directions, and soon the bandaged but still groaning casualties were carried off to a safer place. The playground being waterlogged, it was not hard for two Pathfinders to "drown" in a large pool. However, they were quickly revived by two efficient life-savers using the Holger-Neilson method of resuscitation. Two lines then quickly formed for a knot-tying race, the girls excelling the boys nearly every time.

The highlight of the demonstration was the firelighting competition. Each unit had to build a fire without matches, peel and cook a potato in a three-pound milk tin of water. Soon, amidst a lot of banter and cheering, all the fires were burning, some of the girls even getting their rubbing sticks firing as quickly as the boys. Just who won the competition was hard to say, for who can tell at what point a potato is cooked in two pints of boiling water? Each team maintained vociferously that they had won. Then each unit had to prepare two more fires, demonstrating various methods of fire building. I still think I prefer a gas stove and matches!

After tea Pastor Skinner brought to the students lessons from the life of Jonathan and then inspected the craftwork of the various Pathfinder units. Two of the young people presented him with gifts that they had made. This craftwork is sold to tourists who occasionally visit Honiara, bringing in quite a deal of money for the young people.

At Betikama the JMV and Pathfinder work is firmly established, with the students and teachers keen and enthusiastic. There is a good spirit in the school and the staff is a united and dedicated group. The Pathfinder display was one of the most impressive and happy occasions that I have enjoyed for some time. May God bless these Pathfinders as they prepare for service both in their own island and in isles afar.

Early next morning Pastor Skinner flew out on the plane to continue his itinerary around the Far East. We have appreciated his sojourn with us. His messages have been an inspiration to the young people of this union, and his counsel to the leaders has been most helpful. We look now for a major advance in Missionary Volunteering in the societies and churches throughout this field.

Health and Welfare Uniforms

W. A. STEWART
Home Missionary Secretary, Trans-Commonwealth Union

It was over two years ago that a special group consisting of presidents, Home Missionary secretaries, and Health and Welfare leaders was invited to come to Wahroonga from the field to study the new Health and Welfare Services Manual. Amongst other things, a selected group of ladies was appointed to consider the recommendations in the Manual relative to a ladies' Health and Welfare uniform. Thanks to the hearty co-operation and fine workmanship of a high-class Adventist manufacturer in Western Australia, the first samples of the attractive uniform came from the production line just in time for the later Trans-Commonwealth Union camp meetings.

The accompanying pictures, taken at our South New South Wales camp at Young in March of this year, will give readers an idea at least of how attractive these uniforms really are. As they have been demonstrated before large camp audiences throughout this union, many have been the expressions of gratitude by leaders and laity alike that we now have something of which we can be justly proud.

The colour of the uniform is "green clay" and it is manufactured from Cruisaline cloth at approximately 59/6 (the chevron for the left sleeve and the Health and Welfare Service pins for cap and left lapel are required extras which may be ordered through your Conference Home Missionary Department). Society officers and Federation leaders will wear the same uniform, with special insignia indicating their office.

The uniform may be worn—1. Whilst serving in the Unit or Health and Welfare Centre; 2. Whilst serving in any capacity during an emergency situation; 3. While visiting those needing help in public institutions; 4. At Federation and Welfare meetings; 5. At benefit sales conducted as Welfare projects; 6. At any group activities sponsored by the Unit or Centre. Non-Seventh-day Adventists who take part in the group activities may also wear the uniform while working with the group. However, it is expected that such people will respect our high standards.

Members are asked, however, not to wear the uniform while on Appeal for Missions, or when investigating cases.

The uniform will be particularly distinctive in that it will not be possible to purchase the "green clay" Cruisaline cloth anywhere in Australia except from the manufacturers. The Home Missionary Department has an arrangement with the weavers in Victoria to have this cloth dyed the colour especially chosen.

All inquiries regarding the new uniform should be made to your local Conference Home Missionary Department. It is anticipated that as the ladies of our churches come to understand the importance of the new Health and Welfare uniform they will gladly wear it to the glory of God, as they bring before the world the Health and Welfare ministry of the remnant church.

Mesdames H. Springle, T. Brown, G. Merrit, and A. Judd demonstrate the new Health and Welfare uniform at the New South Wales camp at Young.

Preserved to Repent

B. FOSTER

As Melbourne has its famous Moomba Festival, so on a much-reduced scale Campbelltown (Greater Sydney) has its Fisher's Ghost Festival. This small town of some 5,000 people has made way for a recently formed Adventist church. The belief in a ghost has not prevented the Advent Message from becoming established in this growing town.

In the forming of this church there were some remarkable indications of God's leading. One case is that of Brother Herbert Orwin, who was born in the mining village of Doe Lea, Derbyshire, England. In 1960 I had the privilege of studying God's message with this gentleman and his wife, and learned the highlights of our brother's life.

In the grim conditions in the English mines, Brother Orwin was buried alive with twenty-two others. He and one other came out to see the next morning's sunshine; climbing up a 1,500-foot ladder to escape from gas-permeated depths, life was granted against tremendous odds.

The shadow of Gallipoli fell across our brother's path. Forty-seven out of 1,100 came back from one campaign, including Brother Orwin, with one arm blown off while he was endeavouring to save another's life. Thirty-seven operations in an unhygienic army hospital in France—no hope given for recovery—and yet life's flame still burned strongly.

The second world war came. Men were blown out of a building by a "doodle bug," and our brother emerged from the rubble and dust.

1952, and Australia loomed on the horizon. Brother Orwin was involved in a series of accidents: He fell from a windmill and was badly injured. He fell off a boiler onto steel plates. He fell off the top of a caravan and suffered a broken back. Assessment by hospital staff, "This is a miracle man."

Then God's message came. This man, who threatened to show anyone the door who tried to change his views concerning the joys of smoking, was impressed as God's Spirit began to operate on his heart.

But in August, 1960, he suffered serious coronary and angina trouble. He was rushed to hospital, where his condition was pronounced hopeless. Toward the midnight hour my telephone rang. The message: "Tell Mr. Orwin's family to prepare for the worst. He has slipped into what appears to be the last comatose state." Two days later the patient said, "Brother Foster, the other night, a few minutes before I slid into the void, I saw a lovely red carpet stretched before me. Will you tell me what it means?" My answer was given to the effect that he had a glimmer of that which appeared to be a carpet, and that this was caused by his condition.

Three weeks later he was able to leave the hospital, much to the surprise of the staff. Again came the question, "What did the red carpet mean?" That week the total victory over smoking was gained. I suggested, "Brother Orwin, if I find the carpet and it is connected with us in some way, it will be impressive." He agreed.

Since I was planning a baptism in conjunction with Pastor K. S. Parmenter in Wahroonga church, I rang his wife and asked, "What is the colour of your church carpet?" She replied, "A beautiful red." The next day I told Brother Orwin, "I have found the carpet you 'saw.' It is in the very place where I have been telling you you should stand in dedication by baptism."

The day for the sacred service came. As we stood in the font and I raised my hand for the dedicatory prayer, Brother Orwin whispered, "This is the carpet I saw, and here today I take my stand."

His good wife declared, "I want the victory over smoking." I told her, "When we are in earnest, God works, too." Seven hours later Sister Orwin was struck down with a strange illness and three weeks' hospitalization followed. Smoking ceased, and the end was baptism, victory in Christ.

Surely the Lord leads today even in the increasing tempo of the twentieth century. May we continue to advance with Him.

"Great as is the shame and degradation through sin, even greater will be the honour and exaltation through redeeming love. To human beings striving for conformity to the divine image there is imparted an outlay of heaven's treasure, an excellency of power that will place them higher than even the angels who have never fallen."—"Christ's Object Lessons," page 163.

Couple Aids Natives

(Taken from the "St. George and Sutherland Shire Leader," N.S.W.)

Hundreds of New Guinea natives may owe their health—if not their lives—to two old-age pensioners in Engadine.

The pensioners are Mr. S. Whitworth, seventy-eight, and his wife, seventy-seven, of Achilles Avenue, Engadine.

For the past five years Mr. and Mrs. Whitworth have filled their spare time making warm patch quilts for natives in the cold highlands of New Guinea.

The quilts go to the natives entirely free.

Mr. Whitworth does a regular round of factories for remnants of furnishing materials.

Many factory owners, who have come to know his quiet, gentle personality and have seen the work he does with the materials, now keep the remnants exclusively for him.

Cost of linings for the quilts is borne by members of the Arncliffe Adventist church.

The Whitworths make about 120 of the quilts each year.

Mission Helps

Between twenty and thirty of them are shipped for New Guinea every three months.

The Seventh-day Adventist mission stations arrange the shipments and distribution of the quilts to the natives.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitworth have refused many offers to purchase their quilts locally. They say they get more satisfaction from knowing that the work helps those most in need than they ever could from cash profits.

Besides the quilts, Mr. and Mrs. Whitworth have made up and despatched hundreds of articles of baby clothes for use in New Guinea hospitals.

Mr. Whitworth is an elder of the Arncliffe Seventh-day Adventist Church.

N.B.—Brother and Sister Whitworth have been engaged in the rug-making business, not for five years, but for twenty-five years, and they were quite bewildered when the local press reporter, alerted by the church press secretary, Sister E. Wells, recently appeared at their door! While the Appeal for Missions campaign was in progress, many who willingly responded mentioned having read the story of the Whitworths. Brother Whitworth recalls being aboard the "Melanesia" with the late revered Captain G. F. Jones, when in 1917 it made a trial trip in Sydney Harbour.

From Far Horizons

Every Soul Won With Sweat and Tears

EUNICE M. TOWNEND

My husband usually does most of the official writing for our family, but I felt I would like to tell you how very much I enjoy the "Record" since I have been in India. It means more to me than it ever did before, even though I have always been a keen reader of our division paper. Some articles in recent issues of the "Record" I have read two or three times.

At the moment I am away with my husband, assisting in some lay training classes in the two Kerala sections. In conjunction with these schools in lay evangelism we run eight-night public efforts. Before the year ends we will have run one of these programmes in each section of the union, making a total of seven. The children are away at Vincent Hill school, so I might as well help my husband with his work as stay at home and feel lonely.

Pastor Townend and our son Kevin have visited these parts before, but it is my first time over here, and I find it an intensely interesting countryside, and so different from the other states of South India. Apart from irrigated areas, South India is very dry and barren. Kerala is a real garden state, and reminds one of the Pacific Islands. They say "Kerala" means land of palms, and I could believe that to be so, for the whole state seems covered with palm trees, most of them coconut palms.

The back country is heavily wooded with rosewood, teak, and similar trees. This morning in a large river which flows through one of the suburbs of Calicut City, I saw some eight miles of logs waiting to be sawn in the many mills which line the river banks. We are staying in Calicut at the moment, and it is so hot and sticky all the time that we can hardly breathe. We shower up to five times a day and perspire profusely in between times. We've been in the state for two weeks now and by the time the month is up we will be ready for the cooler nights of our home city of Bangalore.

Earlier this week we took a few days off between efforts and my husband caught up on his office correspondence, and I on our personal letters. We stayed at the Cape Hotel right on the southernmost tip of India. It was awe-inspiring to stand on this tip of land and look out over the Indian Ocean and realize that at this point no land breaks its vast surface until the Antarctic is reached (Ceylon is to one side of the south of India, and not due south).

It was at this point, Cape Comorin, that we were able to see the sun both rise from and set in the sea. In no other place in India is it possible to see this sight. As the sun comes out of the sea in the east and dips into the sea in the west it looks like an immense red ball of fire, which of course it is, and many times larger than it appears when coming up in the morning in Sydney.

Last year we ran a three-month effort in Mysore State and baptized eight souls. One was formerly a Roman Catholic, five were Hindus, and two were Buddhists. We found it hard to get an audience in that town, and the way was difficult; but over here in Kerala the picture is quite different. The people come to the meetings by the hundreds night after night. As a result, in this state of fourteen million, we have 4,000 church members; whereas in Mysore State with its twenty millions we have only 600 members, some 250 of whom are in the headquarters church in Bangalore and are not natives of the Mysore State. Of course, in our last year's effort we had many more who wanted to be baptized and are now attending church, but they face almost insurmountable Sabbath problems. Every soul in most parts of our great union is won with sweat and tears. Surely our evangelists here need the prayers of God's people.

In six weeks' time we hope to be at Mussoorie for hill leave again. It will be good to see the children. We do miss them so, and Vincent Hill is farther away from Bangalore than Australia is from New Zealand.

We send greetings to our many friends in the homelands.

Why Some Men Fail

Too much talk, not enough walk,
Too much sigh, not enough try,
Too much bask, not enough ask,
Too much blow, not enough go,
Too much blink, not enough think,
To much mope, not enough hope,
Too much shirk, not enough work,
The result is you miss the goal.

Handling Loneliness

W. A. FAGAL
Pastor, Faith for Today

Have you ever been faced with a situation that made you feel God was far away? That He really didn't care? I suppose all of us have been tempted to feel like that at some time. The prophet Isaiah at one time said, "Verily Thou art a God that hidest Thyself." God seemed far away to him. Moses at one time said he just wanted to get a glimpse of God, but God denied him the privilege of seeing His face. Philip said to Jesus, "Show us the Father, and it sufficeth us." Yes, men and women down through the ages have wished they might catch a glimpse of God.

Have you ever wished God was somewhere in this world where you might go and formally call on Him, see Him with your own eyes, and visit with Him? Many people have wished that. If this could be done, what would be accomplished? Well, of course, then no one could ever again deny the existence of God. There could never again be any question about that. But is that what God wants? Seemingly it is not. Rather, God wants to reveal Himself to those who really want to believe in Him, to those who feel their need of Him and who desire to trust in Him. And so God has said, "Ye shall seek Me, and find Me, when ye shall search for Me with all your heart." When a man or woman really searches for God in the depths of any experience, no matter how hard it might seem, the promise is that he will find Him. And I want you to know that this is the way it works every time.

I will never forget a telephone call I received many months ago from a gentleman whom I had never met, but with whom I had corresponded. He was an alcoholic. He telephoned me this day and said, "Pastor, I called you because a terrible experience has come to me. I have been free from alcohol for over a year. It was a wonderful victory in my life. But now I have come on a business venture to a city that is far away from my home. I had high expectations regarding what would be accomplished here. The whole world fell apart on me when I got here. As a result, in my discouragement, I went back to alcohol, and for the last two days in this hotel room I have been drinking heavily. Now, I realize what a terrible thing it is that I've done, and I realize my need of help, and so I have telephoned you."

I chatted with him for a few moments, and asked. "Do you have any more liquor in your room?" He replied, "I destroyed it all before I called you. But I'm so alone here where I am. I'm so terribly alone." I answered, "You're not alone. Someone is there with you, giving you help and giving you strength right now. God is there with you. He has already been speaking to your heart. He impressed you to call me. He impressed you to destroy the drink you had there. He has impressed you to seek for help, and now that you've called, God is there to help you."

I told him that were I there with him I would suggest that we both pray to God. But I told him we could still pray even though we were separated by the miles. At my request he bowed his head and I bowed mine, and we talked to God, both of us, and the long-distance telephone connected us as we prayed. In that moment, that man seeking God discovered that He was there to help him, and as a result he received strength to go on and meet the difficult experiences that had come to him, and bring himself back to sobriety and to right living again.

Let me assure you that when you are faced with a difficult experience, a catastrophe of life, you will find strength as you remind yourself of David's words, "I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." God is with you, and God will help you if you will permit Him. In His strength you, too, may have victory through any and every experience of life.

May we never forget that "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."—"The Record," U.S.A.

Weddings

ELLIOT-GRUBB. A new Christian home was set up when Walter David Elliot, son of Brother and Sister D. H. Elliot, exchanged marriage vows with Maureen Lucy Grubb, daughter of Brother and Sister T. J. Grubb, at the Hobart church, Tasmania, on March 20, 1961. The bride is on the staff of the Sanitarium Health Food Company's Wholesale office, and both families are respected members of the Hobart church. A large number of friends gathered to wish the happy couple Godspeed.
J. E. Cormack.

GASTON-KNOWLES. Barrymore James Gaston and Brenda Knowles stood before God in the presence of many witnessing friends in the Prospect church, South Australia, on Wednesday evening, March 29, 1961, to be joined together in the sacred ties of marriage. Both these young people have recently come to a knowledge of present truth, and with us rejoice in the fellowship of church membership. May the rich blessing of God rest upon their union, and with us all, may they participate in the marriage supper of the Lamb.
John H. Wade.

BICHARD - McBURNIE. Barbara Ann McBurnie walked down the aisle of the Red Hill (Brisbane) church with charming grace and dignity in the evening of February 22, 1961, to meet her waiting bridegroom, Seth Marcus Bichard. Delightful floral beauty was lent tonal colour by the church's Kinsman electronic organ, and the blending made a very sweet setting for this memorable occasion. Barbara is the daughter of the present elder of the church. Seth, whose home folk are in Bundaberg, is an employee of the Sanitarium Health Food Company. We pray that God's choicest blessings may be theirs. M. M. Stewart.

EATON-ASHLIN. The tastefully decorated chapel of the W.A. Missionary College was the scene of a pretty wedding when in the afternoon of February 7, 1961, Edwin John Eaton and Enid Rosemary Ashlin met to pledge their troth each to the other. The reception in the college dining-room was a happy occasion when convivial pleasures were thoroughly enjoyed by a representative gathering of relatives and friends, and many good wishes expressed. Enid will be missed from the boarding department, in which she has given efficient help. We wish these young people much of Heaven's blessing as they make their home by historic Seven Day Road in the lovely Manjimup district.
R. Reye.

CAPON-THOROGOOD. On the afternoon of April 9, 1961, in the beautifully decorated Frankston church, Victoria, a large group of relatives and friends gathered to witness the marriage of Wilbur John Capon and Valerie Joyce Thorogood. Both are active and earnest young people of the Frankston church, where the groom's parents and the bride's father are officers. The many good wishes expressed by all present will not be in vain as these two young people established their home on the principles of the Word, amid the unspoiled bush of the Cranbourne district, Victoria. May their home and lives be a blessing and a witness to their Lord and His cause.
Hugh J. Bolst.

SPENCER - ARDIS. The Hughesdale church, Victoria, was the setting for the wedding of Maxwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Spencer of Swan Hill, and Yvonne, daughter of Brother and Sister David Ardis, of Bunyip. A large circle of friends gathered to wish them future happiness. Our prayer was that God would bless them in their future home. W. J. Cole.

SIOFELE-FROST. The Palmerston North church, N.Z., was chosen by Joseph and Malu as the place where they would exchange marriage vows before God and their many friends on March 2, 1961. The bridegroom is the son of Pastor Papu of the Samoan Mission and the bride the daughter of an Adventist family in Samoa. As these young people unite their lives in service and make their home in Auckland, we wish them God's richest blessing. J. T. Howse.

WEBSTER-EASON. On April 3, 1961, at the Dubbo church, N.S.W., Noel Clyde, the youngest son of Sister M. Webster of Elong Elong, and last of her twelve children to be married, was united in holy wedlock to Dorothy Roslyn, daughter of Brother and Sister Eason of Dubbo. A crowded church and the large gathering at the wedding reception indicated the popularity of these two young people and the esteem in which they are held. We wish them God's richest blessings as they set up their home on a station property in the Tomingley district of western New South Wales. The writer was assisted by Pastor K. Bullock in the ceremony and also at the reception.
R. A. Millsom.

FITZCLARENCE-COLLINS. In the afternoon of March 22, 1961, in the Perth city church, John Edmond Fitzclarence and Jennifer Mae Collins were united in the bonds of holy wedlock. The bridegroom recently returned from a period of service in the Coral Sea Union, where he was engaged in building operations. The bride was a member of the office staff of the Sanitarium Health Food Company's Windsor Depot in Melbourne. Both are graduates of W.A.M.C. At the wedding breakfast happy social converse was held and a wealth of good wishes showered on the happy young couple. May Heaven's abundant blessing attend them as they set up their home in the Bencubbin district. R. Reye.

UNTIL THE DAY BREAK

HOULT. Friends and relatives gathered at the Mt. Thompson crematorium, Brisbane, on March 5, 1961, to bid a last farewell to Sister Lily Hoult. Our sister in the Lord was seventy-three years of age, and in recent years suffered much. She now sleeps peacefully in Jesus, free from all pain. She was a devoted mother and a genuine Christian. Before her passing she expressed her gratitude for the ministry she had received from previous pastors of the church who recently left Brisbane, and for the kindness of brethren and sisters in the faith. We extend sympathy to all members of Sister Hoult's family and commend them to the God of all comfort in whom their loved one found peace. N. C. Burns.

DODD. Katherine Harriet Dodd, aged eighty-three years, fell peacefully asleep in death in Adelaide, South Australia, on Sabbath, April 1, 1961. Her connections with the remnant church go back to the very early days of our denominational history in South Australia. We laid her to rest in the West Terrace cemetery confidently awaiting the day of glorious resurrection.
John H. Wade.

TUPAI. Little Edward Suisala's life was suddenly cut short in death after an operation on March 21, 1961, in the Auckland Hospital, N.Z. Born November 17, 1960, Edward was the only child of our esteemed Brother and Sister Rangoso Tupai, of the Ponsonby church. These young people come from Samoa, and Sister Tupai is the daughter of Pastor and Mrs. Afaese of Samoa. Words of comfort were spoken at the funeral service and the thoughts of all directed to the joyful hope of Christ's return and the great resurrection morning.
J. T. Howse.

TODD. With the passing of Brother William S. Todd on March 25, 1961, the Adventist Church of North Queensland has lost a faithful pioneer. Born in Scotland in 1886, he came to Australia, later married Miss E. Nokes and settled in the lower Burdekin district. He exerted a humble, godly influence in the community, and his good works do follow him. For years he was the main representative of the Adventist Church in Ayr. He served on the North Queensland executive committee for a long period, and later played an active part in the Home Hill church. It was fitting that Brother C. Lowe and the writer should bring words of encouragement to his wife and sons, Norman, Cedric, Arnold, and Oswald, and also to other close relatives in the Ayr church which our late Brother Todd helped build and serve as its first elder.
J. Ludlow.

MILLS. "A mother is sleeping in Israel, her hands are folded to rest. She toiled for the Lord without ceasing; now He's given her well-earned rest." Janet Glenn Mills was born in Scotland seventy-five years ago, and came to Australia with her mother at the age of ten. They were soon to find in the acceptance of the Advent faith a complete change in their way of life. They had planned on a business career, but at the call of the Lord they left it to follow Him in the early development of the educational programme of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Living in the home of Sister E. G. White, training in the Australasian Missionary College as a teacher, and completing the missionary nurse's course at the Sydney Sanitarium, all combined to fit Nettie for the important role she was to play. At the age of twenty-two she joined her husband, the late Pastor Joseph Mills, in establishing the denomination's first missionary training college in the Far East—in Singapore; and later in founding similar colleges in Western Australia and in New Zealand. Her husband concluded his ministry with service at the A. M. College in 1926, but she lived on to be an inspiration to countless youth and older folks. Our sister's epitaph is written not in stone but in the lives she influenced to follow her Lord and Saviour. Her hope in the glad day of resurrection was sure, and today she rests in perfect peace.

Her daughter Ferne Worboys, with husband Harry, grand-daughter Carol Anne in Christchurch, N.Z., grandson Warren at Avondale, as well as a large number of those she "mothered" in the Advent faith, cherish her memory. J. J. Dever.

COLLETT. After a long illness, Edna Tamar Collett fell asleep in the blessed hope on February 24, 1961, in Auckland, N.Z. We laid her to rest in the Waikumete cemetery in the belief that she will awaken on the resurrection morning to meet her Lord and Master. Words of comfort were spoken both at the chapel and the crematorium.
J. T. Howse.

JOHNSON. On March 28, at the Mangere cemetery, we spoke of the glorious assurance of the gospel at the quiet resting place of Mrs. Violet Johnson. One of the five sons who paid their tributes to a life of love was Mervyn, well-known among Auckland Adventists. One of three stepdaughters is Sister W. J. Richards, now of Newcastle, New South Wales. With all these dear friends we share heartfelt sympathy and point them to the blessed hope.
R. Pavitt Brown.

WATT. Sister Madeline Watt accepted the message which meant so much to her, under the ministry of Pastor G. Weslake, and was baptized at Timaru over twenty years ago. She passed to her rest on March 7 in her eighty-seventh year. While the last few years of her life proved to be difficult ones, she laid down life's burdens in full confidence of meeting her Lord on the glorious resurrection morning. Two sons and two daughters cherish the memory of a loving and faithful mother. Messages of hope and assurance were spoken at the funeral parlours and at the Timaru (N.Z.) cemetery.
A. S. Herbert.

ASHTON. With the passing of Brother Sedman Ashton as a result of an accident on March 5, another of God's saints was laid to rest. Brother Ashton accepted present truth about fifty-eight years ago in England, and his faith never faltered in the great Advent hope and this last message to a perishing world. Although eighty years of age he was still active on his farm. About a year ago he moved with his sister from Tauranga to Waihi (North New Zealand) where they bought a property and pledged the profits to missions—a testimony to the consecration of his heart to God's cause and the finishing of His work. Among the sorrowing are his son, Sedman of Waihi, his daughter, Mrs. Cook of Queensland, brothers and sisters and their families. With them we look forward with confidence to the glorious resurrection day when we will meet again.

THE LAST GREAT SIGN

It is well for the church to remember that the last great sign of the unmistakable approach of the end is world-wide evangelization. That is the supreme task of Christ's church. In its broadest sense evangelization includes every medium that Christians can use to enlighten the world regarding the future. "The last message of warning and mercy is to lighten the whole earth with its glory. It is to reach all classes of men, rich and poor, high and low."—"Christ's Object Lessons," page 228.

1. The Final Warning

Rev. 14: 6-12. Note verses 6, 8, 9, 10, where three angels are mentioned as giving three messages: (1) "the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth," (2) "Babylon is fallen," (3) "If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark . . . the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God." Notification that the judgment "has come" (R.S.V.), and a call to worship the Creator are involved in the first angel's message. The second angel announces the fall of spiritual Babylon, which symbolized apostasy, confusion, arrogance. The third warns that worship of the beast results in a "mark," or seal. Creation is memorialized in the Sabbath, and the mark of apostasy is deliberate rejection of the true Sabbath and deliberate acceptance of Sunday worship together with other signs of apostate worship.

"No one has yet received the mark of the beast. . . . But when the decree shall go forth enforcing the counterfeit sabbath, and the loud cry of the third angel shall warn men against the worship of the beast and his image, the line will be clearly drawn between the false and the true. Then those who still continue in transgression will receive the mark of the beast."—"Evangelism," page 234, 235.

2. The Latter Rain of the Holy Ghost

Acts 2:41, 43. "The same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls. . . . And many wonders and signs were done by the apostles." "Those primitive Christians were few in numbers, without wealth or honour, yet they exerted a mighty influence. The light of the world shone out from them."—"Testimonies," Vol. 5, pages 239, 240.

Joel 2: 28, 29. "It shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh." This must mean that (1) God's Spirit works upon the hearts of all men and thus opens the way for acceptance of the gospel; (2) the Holy Spirit is poured mightily upon a witnessing church, which is God's instrument in the final revival. "This prophecy of Joel . . . was not all fulfilled at the beginning of the gospel dispensation. This is evident from the wonders in heaven and earth . . . which were to be precursors of 'the great and terrible day of the Lord.' Though we have had the signs, that terrible day is still in the future."—"Early Writings," page 142.

Acts 1: 8. "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto Me. . . . unto the uttermost part of the earth."

"The angel who unites in the proclamation of the third angel's message is to lighten the whole earth with his glory. . . . The work will be similar to that of the day of Pentecost. . . . The great work of the gospel is not to close with less manifestation of the power of God than marked its opening."—"The Great Controversy," page 611; see also page 612.

Luke 14: 23. "Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled." "Compel" comes from a Greek word meaning "necessity," and denotes constraint, whether by entreaty or force. Jesus "constrained" His disciples to get into a ship (Matt. 14: 22); Saul "compelled" ("punished," R.S.V.) the Christians to blaspheme (Acts 26:11). Energy, enthusiasm, urgency are required in God's service in these "end times."

3. The Situation Today

2 Peter 3: 11, 12, 14, R.S.V. "Since all these things are thus to be dissolved, what sort of persons ought you to be in lives of holiness and godliness, waiting for and hastening ["earnestly desiring"] the coming of the day of God." Had the church of Christ done her appointed work as the Lord ordained, the whole world would before this have been warned, and the Lord Jesus would have come to our earth in power and great glory."—"The Desire of Ages," pages 633, 634.

Acts 1: 14, R.S.V. "All these with one accord devoted themselves to prayer"; chapter 4: 13, "When they (the Jewish leaders) saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were uneducated, common men, . . . they recognized that they had been with Jesus." Unity in devotion was an outstanding characteristic of the early church, and without it there could have been no Pentecost, no mighty demonstration of the Spirit to launch the church on its conquering way. "Unlearned and ignorant" (K.J.V.) and "uneducated" do not mean "ignorant" in our common use of that word, but rather persons not professionally trained.

Mark 16:15. "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Matthew's expanded parallel says, "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations" (R.S.V.). The context, Mark 16: 15-18, indicates that this promise included the gift of spiritual powers of a miraculous order, which were in themselves signs of God's presence with His church. "The gifts were not confined to the apostles, but extended to the believers. Who will have them? Those that believe. How long? There is no limitation; the promise runs parallel with the great commission to preach the gospel and reaches the last believer."—"Early Writings," page 134.—"Review and Herald."

BREVITIES

Brother Ross Wainwright, a 1960 Ministerial graduate of the Australasian Missionary College has recently been granted a Ministerial Internship to work in the North New Zealand Conference.

The West Australian Conference has welcomed to its staff Pastor Austen Fletcher from Melbourne. Pastor Fletcher is associated with the Cooke city mission in Perth and is also pastor of the Fremantle church.

Pastor M. G. Townend reports from South India Union: "To be able to report 101 souls baptized during one quarter as a result of the evangelistic witness of laymen in five of our seven sections (conferences) is immensely gratifying."

Three major evangelistic missions now in progress report excellent attendances. The mission in Melbourne conducted by Pastor Geoffrey Ratcliffe and his team opened on April 9 with 7,000 people attending three sessions. Pastor Cooke and his team commenced another mission in Perth on the same night with 3,800 people present at four sessions. Pastor Coltheart is still drawing large crowds to his meetings in the Sydney Town Hall.

Hasty Words May Condemn Us

R. R. BIETZ

There is no question but that we are living in the closing scenes of the world's history. The Lord is soon coming back to earth. Significant signs are being fulfilled. These are specifically mentioned in the Bible and these we need to preach with much emphasis.

Let us be careful, however, that we do not assume to have knowledge about specific developments which the angels in heaven haven't discovered yet. There seem to be some who are making reckless statements. However, God has called us to preach salvation rather than invite persecution. That will come soon enough. Let us not hasten it by irresponsible statements. The messenger of the Lord has given some timely counsel on this matter. Let us read it again.

"The time will come when unguarded expressions of a denunciatory character, that have been carelessly spoken or written by our brethren, will be used by our enemies to condemn us. . . . Let all beware lest by reckless expressions they bring on a time of trouble before the great crisis which is to try men's souls."—"The Coming Crisis," page 56.

"There will come a time when, because of our advocacy of Bible truth, we shall be treated as traitors; but let not this time be hastened by unadvised movements that stir up animosity and strife. I beg of you for Christ's sake, let no hasty, rash expressions fall from your lips, let nothing be uttered that will savour of railing, for all this is human. Christ has no part in it."—Id., page 57.

Health and Welfare Fruitage and Influence

W. A. STEWART
Home Missionary Secretary, Trans-Commonwealth Union

How cheering it was to learn of fruitage from the growing Welfare ministry in the South New South Wales Conference as reported by Pastor R. A. Millsom, the Home Missionary secretary in that field.

Amongst other things, his camp report revealed that a New Australian family was now attending church and Sabbath school as a result of help given them by the Albury society. Temora reported a mother and three children now going to their church, primarily because of help rendered by the Dorcas ladies. The police in Tumut and the Red Cross in Dubbo greatly appreciate our hearty co-operation in their work in the community.

Hospital visitation at Goulburn and Lithgow had also shed an influence for good in these centres. From far-off Broken Hill came an excellent report of appreciated cooking demonstrations and society participation in needed community services.

It was also encouraging to learn that Albury, Dubbo, and Mudgee, to provide for their ever-expanding Health and Welfare services, hope soon to establish centres. Everywhere our laity are coming to realize the important part this Health and Welfare ministry must play in this department.

Trans-Commonwealth Union Appeal

From the third report issued by the Trans-Commonwealth Union secretary, Pastor W. A. Stewart, we cull these comments and experiences.

Family Collects £400 in Tasmania

Here we are back at the office after spending a very happy and profitable time in Tasmania. How refreshing it is to breathe in the spirit of the country in contrast to the larger cities! Pastor Cormack (local conference departmental secretary) and I did enjoy visiting business men not previously approached on the Appeal for Missions. The gifts were usually not larger than one guinea, but the friendliness and interest shown in our work was a tonic.

Again we were reminded that New Australians are generous. Our party on Sunday collected £92 from two camps in about three hours. How glad the folk were to receive magazines in their native tongue! As elsewhere, our Hobart office has received a number of second donations from folk who after reading the magazine were impressed to give more.

In Launceston it was our privilege to shake hands with Brother and Sister Rex Mackay, who have been increasing their Appeal collection annually, until last year they reached the grand sum of approximately £400 for their family. They gathered this amount by devoting every spare moment after work to the Appeal. Most of this money was received in small donations.

Other Conferences

Let's take our hats off to some of our senior workers and their wives who, in spite of failing strength, shame many of us who are younger, by their Appeal returns. Pastor and Mrs. H. Baird's names appeared last week on the Victorian Conference bulletin as the family with the highest return for the week, which was £107. What would the cause of God do without these older brethren and sisters who never fail to take an active part!

To South Australia goes the honour of being first "out" in this union. We liked the telegraphed message: "Goal achieved, forging ahead for £10,000."

Victoria's excellent percentage suggests that they will be second.

Our college in the Golden West should be in the next report from the local conference and give an encouraging lift. The students do exploits at Appeal time.

South New South Wales launched their campaign last Sabbath, and it looks as if Broken Hill, the "Silver City," must be responding with gold, for in the first few days they reported seven minute-men and one Tens Club member. South New South Wales is very well organized and promises to move forward rapidly.
